Tulkoff Food Products Completes Move to Holabird Industrial Park

Baltimore based Tulkoff Food Products, recently completed a move of its headquarters to a newly built, state of the art food manufacturing facility in the Holabird industrial park. Owned and operated by the Tulkoff family, the company manufactures condiments, sauces and spice blends for the foodservice and retail food industry. Determined to preserve its 75 year history as a Baltimore business, CEO Philip Tulkoff, began efforts three years ago to secure a new location within city limits. Despite the added complexity of the bustling real estate market which was forcing industrial facilities out of Baltimore, Tulkoff negotiated a deal with the Baltimore Development Corporation to purchase the last remaining development site in the Holabird Industrial Park. To commemorate this historic event, Tulkoff Food Products will be hosting a grand opening celebration on June 3rd, with a ribbon cutting attended by local and state officials, customers and local businesses. The event, which will be held from 9am-12pm will feature opening remarks by Assistant Deputy Mayor Carolyn Blakeney.
